

First World War Roll of Honour of Commercial Bank of Scotland

Commercial Bank of Scotland was established in Edinburgh in 1810. By the outbreak of war in 1914 it had 170 branches across Scotland and one in London.

In the course of the war 578 Commercial Bank men served in uniform, of whom 99 were killed. This book was published in the 1920s to honour them. It begins with an account of the unveiling of the bank's war memorial in 1921. Page 10 lists the medals and other honours awarded to members of the bank's staff. The main part of the book, beginning at page 11, lists all 578 men who served in alphabetical order, with the bank branch they went from; their regiment; final rank; and, where applicable, details of decorations and death. Pages 74-75 list the names of the 99 Fallen. Finally, page 76 gives a detailed description of the bank's war memorial.

Commercial Bank of Scotland's war memorial was originally installed in the banking hall of the bank's head office on George Street, Edinburgh.

In 1959 Commercial Bank of Scotland merged with National Bank of Scotland to form National Commercial Bank of Scotland. A decade later, that bank became part of the Royal Bank of Scotland.

In 1998 the Royal Bank of Scotland sold the former Commercial Bank head office. The building's war memorials, as a precious part of the bank's heritage, were removed and reinstalled in bank buildings nearby. The two panels of the First World War memorial were installed in the registered office at 36 St Andrew Square, on either side of the entrance to the banking hall. They remain in that location today.

A Memorial Record of the Staff of
The Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited who served in the Great War
1914-18

IN preparing this Roll of Honour it was felt that something more than a mere list of the names of those who fought and those who fell in the Great War of 1914-18 was necessary, and it was decided that the words spoken, and a record of the ceremony, at the unveiling of the Memorial Tablets—which bear the names of those of the Bank's Staff who were killed—might be a fitting introduction.

Neither the Memorial Tablets nor the words of those whose privilege it was to speak can fully express the sorrow or the joy, the great thankfulness and pride, of those who mourn their dead or of those who rejoice in the safe return of their dear ones.

On 16th March 1921 the Memorial Tablets erected in the Head Office were unveiled by The Deputy-Governor, The Earl of Mar and Kellie, K.T.

Mr Rankine, the Senior Director, asked Mr William Babington, one of the Directors, to address the assembled company.

Mr Babington said—

“My Lord, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—The occasion which calls us together to-day, the unveiling of the Memorial to those of our Staff who fell in the War, will, I know, recall anxious and sad days to all of those present, but it was felt by the Directors to be one which would give them an opportunity of expressing, however inadequately, their high sense of admiration of the courageous spirit which, in August 1914 and during the whole course of the Great War, was shown by those of The Commercial Bank of Scotland's Staff who were of military age.

“As you will remember, during the first few months of the War the nation hardly realised the magnitude of the struggle in which we were engaged, but as time passed it became evident that all the resources of the country and all its capable manhood must be used. The Staff of no institution responded more loyally than that of The Commercial Bank.

“In August 1914, sixty-eight of our employees—soldiers of the Territorial Army then existing—went forth, gladly responding to the call to arms, and filled with that spirit which must lead to ultimate success. Further calls were ungrudgingly responded to, and in all five hundred and seventy-eight of our Staff joined the glorious British Army. Of these, ninety-nine laid down their lives, and this Memorial is a small effort to perpetuate in this place their memory; but while it records only the names of those we mourn, it will serve also to assure those who came safely back of our admiration of their heroism. A Roll of Honour is being prepared, containing the names of all of our Staff who served in the War.

“The list of ninety-nine names of our dead heroes is a long and sad one, and a heavy percentage of those who fought for the right, for freedom, and for their King. It is practically one in every six of those who served—a terrible toll of brave young lives cut off almost on the threshold of the joys and responsibilities of this world.

“We mourn them, and shall mourn them all our lives. We feel that we can perhaps scarcely understand—though there are among the number of Directors some who have lost their dearest—the feelings of the parents and wives of these brave lads, but we know that, though the sorrow be deep, there is behind a feeling of thankful pride that their lives were not given in vain. I can scarcely imagine a greater comfort than to remember that a son, the whole of whose short life is graven on one’s heart, died in a glorious cause—facing death with simple faith and unafraid.

“This Memorial will be now and for ever evidence of the admiration of the Shareholders, Directors, and whole Staff of The Commercial Bank of the loyalty and courage of those ninety-nine whose names are upon it.

“Words are feeble expressions of our deepest feelings. I would that I could better express what at this moment is in my heart, and in the hearts of you all who are present—especially the relatives, fathers, mothers, and widows of those whose names we desire to honour.

“This Memorial is the Bank’s outward expression of its admiration.

“The honours gained by our brave dead, and recorded, as you will see, with their names upon the marble, include that most coveted distinction the Victoria Cross. We are justly proud of these distinctions, but we know too that every one who died, and every one who fought and is again happily with us, displayed true British courage and did his all. Many of those who are now with us gained high honours.

“There is an old American song commemorating one of their heroes of long ago, a man of high ideals and noble nature, which was written at the time of, or soon after, the Civil War by someone now unknown, and which was often sung in France and Belgium by the troops of the Republic and by our own soldiers. This old song, a small thing in itself, is supposed to have been partly the inspiration of the splendid battle-hymn, ‘Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord.’ The song has in it some lines of such grand thought and of such touching simplicity that I cannot refrain from quoting—and indeed it is most appropriate to this day—one of them, ‘His soul is marching on.’

“Our brave lads are lost to us, but their souls live for ever to inspire us and those who come after us. Their glorious example is a heritage we are justly proud of.

“The design of the Memorial, so admirably carried out by the distinguished architect, Mr Balfour Paul, is, I think, a dignified expression of our feelings, and I am sure will gain in approbation from the fact that he himself fought throughout the War.

“Our noble Deputy-Governor, The Earl of Mar and Kellie, in the regretted absence of the Marquis of Breadalbane, whose health is at present somewhat delicate, has kindly undertaken to unveil the Memorial, and I now ask His Lordship to be good enough to do so.”

The Earl of Mar and Kellie then unveiled the Memorials.

Mr Robb, the General Manager, said: "It is with feelings of regret mingled with pride that I now read the names of the ninety-nine gallant members of the Bank's Staff who so nobly responded to the nation's call, and gave their lives for the preservation of all we hold dear." He then read the names on the Memorial Tablets.

Wreaths of palms were then placed beneath the Tablets by two members of the Staff, both of whom had served in the War.

The Rev. George Christie, B.D., T.D., St Andrew's Parish Church, offered the following dedicatory prayer:—

"Almighty and Everlasting God, who orderest all things in heaven and earth, who makest the wrath of man to praise Thee, and settest bounds to the remnant thereof, we give Thee thanks this day for the wonderful victory Thou hast bestowed upon us and our Allies, leading us through fire and through water into a wealthy place of peace; for the mighty deliverance won thereby for us and for the world; and more particularly for Thy servants who, following from afar the example of Thy dear Son our Saviour, Jesus Christ, loved not their lives unto the death, but freely laid them down in our defence.

"Grant, O Lord, that the remembrance of these Thy servants may evermore be precious to us; and that these Memorials erected to commemorate their valour and sacrifice even unto death, may be of power in all time coming to provoke them that look upon them unto like love and unselfish loyalty; through Jesus Christ, our Lord.

"God of all comfort and consolation, we remember before Thee the bereaved and the desolate; comfort those who are lonely and bereft; may the remembrance of those now commemorated be an inspiration and a holy pride, that their sorrow may be mingled with rejoicing and brightened with the hope of a better meeting where parting is unknown.

“We pray for the wounded and the broken that they may have healing and help, and for ourselves that we may willingly praise Thee with our lives, for whom Thou hast done great things.

“All these things we ask in the name, and for the sake, of Him in whose words we further pray :

“Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever.—Amen.”

The Earl of Mar and Kellie then said—

“Ladies and Gentlemen,—In the first place I desire to express my great regret, which no doubt you all share, that owing to continued ill-health the Governor of the Bank, Lord Breadalbane, is unable to be present to-day to unveil this Memorial, but at the same time I can assure you that I am deeply sensible of the privilege bestowed on me in being asked to take his place. Now that the flags have been removed from the Memorial we see what a beautiful design it is. It is a credit to the distinguished architect. There is something inevitably sad about a Memorial such as this, for it is erected to commemorate those who have died in the prime of life; and glorious as their sacrifice undoubtedly was, yet they were taken in the fullness of life, and before they had had the opportunity to show what they could do for the community of which they were members. Had they survived, doubtless many of them would have risen to high office in the profession which they had chosen. But apart from the sadness there is another side, a brighter side, when we think of the occasion of this Memorial, a testimony to the greatest effort ever yet made in history by a united country, and we feel, and always shall feel, a glow of pride when we read the names immortalised on these Tablets. Mr Babington has told us that five hundred and seventy-eight men went out from this Bank. Therefore there must be men here, comrades of these ninety-nine heroes, who fortunately came back to resume their profession, having been through the mill, having seen the courage, the endurance, the patience and cheerfulness under hardship, and the horror of it all; and yet I venture to say that there is not one among them who does not think that it was worth while, or who would hesitate to undergo it again, should their country call, in an equally righteous cause. I wonder if you have felt what I have felt very strongly since the War broke out, and even feel to-day, and that is the fallibility—I had almost said the futility—of human judgment and foresight. Even the best and most acute brains have been hopelessly astray, like men groping in the dark, unable to see what is to happen from day to day, or even from hour to hour, mere puppets in the hands of God. When Lord Kitchener prophesied that the War would last three years, we were inclined to scoff, but it lasted more than four years. At the commencement of the War it was thought that distress from unemployment would be so great, that the Prince of Wales raised a great sum to alleviate the expected suffering; but, as it turned out, there was absolutely no unemployment, and the money was not spent for the object for which it was raised. Again, since the end of the War, after four years of unprecedented destruction, we thought that to make that good would ensure four or five years of booming trade. After barely two years since the Armistice, there has occurred a great and most sudden slump in trade, the like of which has not been known for a generation. I could multiply similar instances, but I will not bore you with them; it is sufficient to say that prophecies have been almost invariably wrong, and what is the reason? I suppose because men founded their ideas on what happened during and after former wars, forgetting that the recent upheaval was so vast and world-wide that no former precedent possibly could apply. And it is this difficulty of forecasting what is going to occur that makes this period of reconstruction so incomparably anxious and difficult, and it is up to great Institutions and Organisations like The Commercial Bank of Scotland, from the Court of Directors to the last appointed clerk, by working on sound lines, and putting their hearts into it, one and all, to see that we do not lose the victory which these ninety-nine men of the Bank helped to win. We sometimes shudder to think what would have happened to us all if we had lost the War instead of winning it, and when we think of that, and of the men who fought for us and returned, many disabled and maimed for life, and of those who fought and did not return, surely our gratitude cannot be exaggerated or overdone. Ladies and Gentlemen, I have done, and I will conclude by expressing a hope that this Memorial may remain so long as this Building remains, as an example and source of pride to this and future generations."

"God save the King," was then sung.

DESCRIPTIVE NOTE OF WAR MEMORIAL.

THE WAR MEMORIAL, erected in memory of the members of the Staff of the Commercial Bank of Scotland who lost their lives in the War, has been placed in the large Counting-Hall of the Head Office in Edinburgh, on a site in every way adapted for it. The north wall of this handsome apartment consists in an arcade of three elliptical arches, the centre one pierced by the main entrance from the Vestibule, and the two side ones hitherto blank. These spaces have now been utilised for the erection of the Memorial, which takes the form of two large wall Tablets, on which are inscribed the names, ninety-nine in all, of those commemorated.

Each of the Tablets consists of a slab of Greek Statuary Marble, 6 feet 6 inches in height and 3 feet 4 inches in width, set on a plain sill, built into the wall, of pink granite with a chiselled surface, and with moulded and enriched architraves of the same material, mitred and returned against the projecting marble panel, and surmounted by a plain lintel also of granite.

The names commemorated, along with their rank and regiment, are cut in Roman lettering on the marble panel and gilded, and the Dedicatory Inscription in raised bronze letters, gilded, is set out on the lintel and sill—

“IN PROUD MEMORY OF THESE BRAVE MEN,
MEMBERS OF THE STAFF OF THE COMMERCIAL
BANK OF SCOTLAND, WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES
FOR KING AND COUNTRY IN THE GREAT WAR, 1914-1918.”

The whole feeling of the stone and marble work is one of restraint, and a feeling of richness is provided by a Trophy surmounting the whole panel, consisting of the flags of the Allied Nations, with the victor's wreath of laurel in case-bronze, richly gilded and coloured. The note of colour is repeated on the under side of the Memorial by crossed laurel branches, modelled and cast in bronze and gilded.

The total height of each Memorial is 12 feet.
